Dublin, March 26 (A.P.) .- Setting out secrecy on the first stage of the perilout flight to America, the Junkers airplane Bremen landed at Baldonnel airfrome, near Dublin this evening, and behind another wall of silence. Piloted by Capt. Herman Koehl, who had the benefit of an unsuccessful start on a westward Transatlantic flight last year, the Bremen came humming over Dublin to find Commander Fitzmaurice aloft in a Free State plane, waiting to greet the arrival of the Germans and furnish an escort to guide them to the air station. As soon as Capt. Koehl and his two ompanions, Baron Von Huenefeld and spindler, alighted, they began to stretch themselves; the Free State authorities closed the gates to newspapermen and declined to give information of the German airmen's intention.

Btarting his flights yesterday at 10:30 o'clock, Lindbergh took approximately 200 persons on aerial tours over the city and Arlington. Each flight lasted about fifteen minutes. When he landed in one plane he walked a few feet to another ship loaded with passengers and, with motor roaring, swept into the air while passengers were anighting from the first plane.

During the past six days Lindbergh has made 110 flights over the city and has carried approximately 1,100 passengers with him. The flights were made to stimulate interest in aviation. Messenger boys and mechanics in greasy overalls jostied diplomats and senators and flappers struggled past social leaders in an attempt to secure the coveted tickets entitling them to fly with Lindbergh. The senator is a candidate for reelection this year and the speech was made on the theory that the West Virginia mine operators do not like the Secretary, and therefore would like to hear some unfriendly discussion of him. In the absence of Senator "Jim" Reed, of Missouri, who is in North Carolina, furthering his campaign, his office made public an exchange of telegrams between him and Evans Woollen, Indiana's Democratic favorite son, in which the senator gave assurance that his visiting that State was in no wise intended to break up Woollen's favorite son playhouse. Unfriendly sources had sought to suggest that this is what the senator was trying to do.

Of course, he favored the enforcement of laws enacted to carry it out. It is a fact that both the wets and drys of Congress have found sufficient solace in the Secretary's statement. The Antisaloon League has indicated that it expects amplification of the Secretary's position.

FLOOD-CONTROL LEGISLATION,

Flood-control legislation is about to be considered by both houses of Congress. The Jones bill, to be discussed in the Senate, provides for a commission of five members, consisting of the Secretary of War, the president of the Mississippi River Commission, the Chief of Engineers, and two civilians to be appointed by the President.

It is stated that the Reid bill, soon to be reported to the House, has been radically amended. Instead of providing for a commission, the bill now places flood control under the direction of the Secretary of War and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers, and they are bound to follow the plan devised by Gen. Jadwin, Chief of Engineers.

Both bills provide that the flood-control works shall be paid for by the Government, without local contributions. Neither bill provides for the construction of reservoirs on tributary rivers as a means of controlling the Mississippi.

Congress should not make the mistake of confiding this great work to Army engineers exclusively. Among the civil engineers of the United States are very competent men who have had much more experience than the Army engineers. This great group should be drawn upon for the ability and experience that are indispensable to the construction of successful flood-control works. The task of controlling the Mississippi must be taken up as a new problem, not only because of its magnitude but because the preconceived notions of the Army engineers heretofore handling that work have proved to be both wrong and incurable.

No thorough study of the Mississippi flood problem has been made. It is absurd to claim that a survey of the tributaries of the Missis sippi could have been made during the last summer. Gen. Jadwin's plan is doubtless good, so far as it goes, but neither he nor any other engineer has worked out a project that will keep the great tributaries of the Mississippi from tearing down the levees that are to be built. Obviously no flood-control plan is worth anything if it does not take care of the big rivers, which sometimes are swollen to the size of the Mississippi itself. The natural method of dealing with them would be to hold them back in reservoirs, where the water could be utilized. But who has studied the reservoir question?

Congress is not competent to pass upor flood-control plans. But it can create a commission composed of Army and civil engineers and can give them power to develop and execute a plan. This was done in the case of the Panama Canal, and it seems to be the only sensible procedure. Let the best experts be selected, and let them fix upon a plan after thorough study of the problem to be solved. Then give them the money and direct them to push the work with all possible dispatch.

NEW TENNIS STARS.

Youth has its place with a vengeance on this year's Davis Cup team. Of all the names familiar to tennis enthusiasts in the United. States only that of William Tilden remains in the squad which will make the trip to Mexico City to play there in the first round of international competition. John Hennessey, of Indianapolis: Arnold Jones, of Providence, and Wilmer Allison, of Fort Worth, are the other successful candidates chosen as a result of the tests in the Augusta training camp.

Only Tilden of the entire American team has ever before represented this country in Davis Cup play. Hennessey, oldest in years next to Tilden, has played international tennis, but was rated no higher than fifth in the national rankings last year. Jones and Allison are real youngsters, the latter the intercollegiate champion.

The make-up of the squad demonstrates the change that has taken place in American tennis in the last two years. No longer ago than that Tilden, "Little Bill" Johnston, Vincent Richards and R. N. Williams appeared to he fixtures as the Davis Cup team. Johnston has retired from championship competition. Richards turned professional a little over a year ago and Dick Williams has reached the age at which strenuous play is beyond him.

It is, of course, probable that the American team will be slightly shifted before Davis Cup play ends. The present team should have no difficulty winning its first round match with the Mexican representatives. There are, however, several brackets before this country can challenge the French squad, which now holds the trophy. One of the possible additions is W. F. Coen, jr., of Kansas City, only 16 years old. Coen is to make the trip to Mexico City in order to have further opportunity for practice. Tilden and Davis Cup officials regard him as one of the fastest developing players in the United States and despite his tender years he may yet make the team.

It is a hard task which confronts this year's squad. It hardly seems possible that its memhers can defeat the accomplished French defenders, even if the United States is fortunate to reach them. The selection of youthful placing the Democratic incumbents are better all of those who knew him.

players makes a good beginning. They have plenty of time to improve their game, and eventually they should recapture the trophy that remained here so long before it was taken to France last fall.

FACTS ON UNEMPLOYMENT.

The Secretary of Labor yesterday submitted to the Senate his response to the Wagner resolution. From computations made by the Bureau of Labor Statistics he states that there was a shrinkage in employment between the average of 1925 and those employed January, 1928, of 1,874,050 persons.

Admitting that this is uncomfortable, it is gratifying to learn from the same report that 23.348.692 salaried employes and wage earners are still employed.

The method adopted by Commissioner Stewart, of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, in arriving at these figures was to take the total number of persons employed as shown by the manufacturing census of 1925 as his base, to then apply the shrinkage as shown by the returns from almost 11,000 establishments reporting to the bureau and apply that shrinkage to the total wage earners in manufacturing industry in 1925 to determine the number let out of factories. He then took the actual shrinkage of employment on railroads as reported by the Interstate Commerce Commission and got the actual number released from employment in these two groups. He then took the percentage that those out of work are of those remaining at work, which he found to be 7.43 per cent. He applied that percentage to all of those found in gainful occupations in 1925 other than the professional groups and merchants and people working for hemselves. From this he got his total figure The report particularly calls attention to the spottedness of the unemployment situation at this time as against periods that might fairly

Another interesting thing in connection with the report is that while the Bureau of abor Statistics gathers monthly information employment from practically 11,000 manufacturing establishments all over the United States, and the New York Department of Labor gathers identical information from a very arge number of establishments within that State, the figures arrived at by the two departments as to the percentage of shrinkage in employment as between January, 1927, and January, 1928, was identical, namely 5.8 per cent. This would show that the trend of employment in manufacturing in New York is identical with that in the country as a whole, and would also show that the methods used must be reasonably accurate when two statistical bureaus, one dealing with the United States as a whole and the other with a single State. arrive at the same figure.

.The report further shows the number of art-time and full-time employed. It is interesting to note that 1.1 per cent of the estabishments reporting are operating overtime, and 78.7 per cent of the establishments. weighted in each instance by the number of employes, are operating regular full time. In other words, 79.8 per cent of all employes in manufacturing establishments reporting to the Bureau of Labor Statistics were working full time or over, while 20.2 per cent were working part time. However, the report shows that one-half of 1 per cent were working only

The report will put an end to much wild speculation as to the present number of unemployed. Commissioner Stewart has appended to his report the result of the Baltimore survey, where in the face of estimates ranging from 75,000 to 33,000 men out of work an actual canvass determined that there were but 15,473 unemployed.

The Department of Labor is to be congratulated upon its quick response to the Wagner resolution. The public takes this official report at full face value, and will dismiss the rumors of widespread unemployment as mere political inventions.

MEDICAL SPECIALISTS.

Dr. Milton C. Winternitz, dean of the medical school of Yale University, says that modern medical science has reached a stage in which it has forgotten that the patient is a human being and not an inert specimen to be studied objectively. "Medicine has he says, "that attitude held by the old-fashioned physician who was an empirical psychiatrist and whose objective was to understand the relation of the patient to health There was more real human sympathy before the days of specialization, and today many men are inclined to see their patients merely as a lung or a heart or some organ to be inspected and treated."

This is no new indictment, although it does not often come from a medical man. The layman looks back to childhood, when the doctor was his friend, confidant and adviser, to be called whenever anything went wrong. Now one is forced to accept the modern specialist, whose minutes are fitted into an inflexible routine and who passes from patient o patient with the monotony of a machine. Today's doctor is not the friendly, comforting character of yesterday, even if he is better fitted to administer to human ailments.

But the specialist needs no defense, particularly in this age of specialization. The physician who treats one type of disease or ailment must through years of practice gain greater knowledge of his chosen subject than the old-fashioned general practitioner, whose contact with diseases of the lungs, for instance, was at infrequent intervals. The human family of today is much healthier than that of yesterday and specialized medical practice is largely responsible.

THE BLOC SYSTEM.

The importance attached to the contest for the presidential nominations tends to obscure an issue fully as momentous to the American people, which is to be decided at the November election. The opportunity will be afforded to put an end to the confusion that now exists in the Senate because of bloc control.

The situation presented this year will be almost the reverse of the one that existed at the last congressional election. Then the Republicans were faced with the problem of retaining seats not normally theirs, which they acquired in the landslide of 1920. This fall the Democrats will have to defend, in a good many instances, constituencies over which they have no perpetual hold. Thirty-three vacan cies are at stake, and 21 of that number are in Democratic keeping. The prospects that the Republican candidates will be successful in dis-than even in at least ten States. The chances for Democratic victories in States where Republicans now hold the seats are slight.

A turnover of ten or more seats in the next Senate would just about do away with the so-called Progressive domination that exists in the Seventieth Congress. Such an outcome would reduce Democratic representation to 37 and bring the Republican strength close to 60. The margin then between the two parties would make it extremely difficult for the Progressive group to vote first with one side and then the other and by a series of such trades achieve results to which their actual strength in the Senate does not entitle them.

All of the experience that the citizens of the United States have had inclines them to believe in the two-party system of government Those who do not agree need only look abroad, where the parliamentary system has been made a farce by the placing of blocs upon blocs, until no government can function without compromising itself in advance to do the bidding of a half a dozen divergent and conflicting elements. A good way in which to scotch the spread of any such doctrines in this country would be to return an adequate and working majority of the dominant party to the next Senate.

ABUSE OF THE MAILS.

An effort to draft legislation curbing the activities of those who engage in "mail merchandising" will be made shortly by a subcommittee of the House postoffice and postroads committee. Carried to a successful conclusion, it will mean the end of a practice which has caused untold annoyance to hundreds of thousands of individuals throughout the United States.

The system practiced by "mail merchandis ers" is an adaptation of the plan first used by worthy and legitimate causes. It consists of sending to a list of individuals goods, usually neckties or handkerchiefs, which may be retained at a stated price or returned. The goods as a rule are both shoddy and cheap. They may be absolutely useless to the person to whom they are addressed. If an immediate answer is not given, follow up letters are sent, which take on a blackmailing character,

The contention of the Postoffice Departmen long has been that the mails were not intended for any such purpose. The difficulty has been in framing the necessary legislation. The provisions can not be too broad, so the thought now is to authorize the department to judge each case individually. The work will fall originally upon the department, but the list concerns that are abusing the mailing privileges ought to be formulated soon, and then it will be easy to weed them out. Victims of such business tactics and reputable merchants are entitled to relief as speedily as Congress can grant it.

GEMS OF WISDOM.

Latest evidence of the weighty affairs that occupy the minds of Government officials is given by the ten commandments that have been issued by the Federal Bureau of Education. They are presumably the capstone of that division's labors in the educational field, and combine all the accumulated wisdom of the years for the benefit of those who are engaged in practicing the science of pedagogy. Among the ten are these gems.

"Thou shalt not try to make of thy children little images, for they are a live little bunch, visiting the wriggling of their captivity upon you, their teacher, unto the last weary moment of the day, and showing interest and cooperation unto those who can give them reasonable freedom in working."

"Thou shalt not scream the names of thy children in irritation, for they will not hold thee in respect if thou screamest their name: in vain.

"Thou shalt laugh when wee, woolly ones muddy the floors; when it snows and when the doors bang; when little angels conceal their wings and wriggle, when Tommy spills ink and Mary flops a tray of trailing letters; when visitors appear at the precise moment when all the small heads have forgotten everything you thought they knew.' Unless taken seriously these commandments ought to provide at least one bright spot in the life of the average teacher. They show how the Government would tackle the educational problem if Congress should create the proposed department of education.

ROOSEVELT STADIUM.

Suggestions are put forward from time to time that there be located in Washington a stadium in which athletic contests and out-ofdoor spectacles might be staged. Any number of affairs of these two general types-national in scope and interest-are arranged each year in the United States. They could be staged more appropriately in Washington than else where. Because it has no stadium of sufficient size, however, Washington must be ignored when such events are scheduled.

The latest stadium proposal comes from committee of the Washington Board of Trade Briefly, it proposes that the Roosevelt Memorial, for which a fund of $5,000,000 is to be available, take the form of a stadium. The project, bearing the indorsement of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, contemplates a bowl with a seating capacity of 80,000 to 100,000, artistically conceived, and with ample parking and transportation facilities. Originally it was suggested that the stadium be set down in Potomac Park. Subsequent study led to the conclusion, however, that the park would not be a proper site from several viewpoints, and other sites are now under consideration.

There could be no more fitting memorial to Theodore Roosevelt than a vast stadium dedicated to athletics and amateur sport. Of late there has developed a tendency to make socalled memorials serve a useful purpose. project follows that tendency. The Board of Trade should adopt its committee's suggestion and place itself squarely behind the Lack of Footpaths.

To the Editor of The Post-Sir: Why doesn't the Park and Planning Commission provide footpaths for pedestrians? who wishes to walk. The streets are impossible, because there is no traffic regulation worthy of the name. The parks have no footpaths, and a pedestrian runs the risk of being run down Money Rates Made Easy or Tight by Control Over Gold Movements.

AIDS STABILIZATION OF FOREIGN COUNTRIES

Change in Policy Reported Beginning in Early Part of Last Year.

The influence of the Federal Reserve Board on world credit conditions was set forth yesterday in its report for last year, showing that by encouraging or retarding international gold movements it assumed leadership during either easy or tight money rates.

Witz the gold movement as the key, the board said it permitted the movement to have its normal effect on credits or offset it by purchasing securities in the open market, as it believed trade conditions justified.

an the open marker, as it believed trade conditions justified.

It did not confine its activities to credits, however, but through its power as controller of virtually one-half of the world's monetary gold stocks aided foreign countries in stabilizing their currency and returning to a gold standard basis.

Changes in Polley. These operations represented changes in the Federal Reserve policy. As set forth in the report, "the reserve banks" policy in the early part of the year, when gold imports were exerting an in-

"In the spring and summer, in the besence of considerable net gold movements, the system's policy was expressed in easing the money market brough the purchase of securities and he reduction of discount rates.

"The gold flow into and out of the country, which was thus a major factor in the credit situation in 1927," the report added, "has exerted an important influence on banking conditions in the United States since the beginning of the Federal Reserve system."

Huge Increase in Gold.

Between June 30, 1914, and Decem ber 31, 1927, the stock of monetary gold in the United States increased from $1,891,000,000 to $4,376,000,000, an increase of $2,485,000,000, of which $2,071,000,000 represented reported nei imports less amounts earmarked for foreign account and $414,000,000 additions to gold stock from other sources, chiefly

In 1927 the Federal Reserve banks earned $43,024,000, a reduction of $4,576,000 under the year before, due largely, the board said, to a decline of $84,717,000 in the daily average of the banks' holdings of bilis and securities and a decline in earnings of the hold-ings. The banks handled $62,000,000,000 checks in 1927 compared with 823,000,000,000 of paper for member banks, purchased $4,100,000,000 of bilis in the open mar-ket, paid $55,000,000 of Government coupons, collected $6,700,000,000 of non-cash items for member banks and handled new issues, redemptions and exchanges aggregating $10,800,000,000 for the Treasury Department.

In yesterday's reviews, this department made mention in another column of The Post of the excellence of Fred Nibio's direction of "The Enemy," now at the Columbia. This is a ceremony to which any commentator is bound to become habituated in estimating the worth of Mr. Nibio's successive achievements, In fact, the consistent success of his conventional undertakings seems to be irking this erstwhile monologist, actor and travel lecturer.

It is now Mr. Nibio's carnest wish to step out into new fields of mimetic expression, with new symbols of human activity to execute his pantomines. He frankly confesses to a hankering to direct a motion picture without a single pretty face in it—or any other kind of face, for that matter.

It is Mr. Niblo's belief that enough can be said with drooping shoulders, clenched fists, tired or tripping feet. relaxed or straining muscles, to make it wholly superfluous to show the expression on the actors' faces.

movement of feet and muscles, but I do not recall any instance of undying fame having been apprehended in this manner. Such an enterprise, it seems to me, is hardly worth the risk of resuscitating that ancient wheeze about the proud dowager who deemed her daughter's feet so beautiful that she commissioned a famous sculptor to make a bust of them!

William C. Ewing. Stanley-Crandall staff artist, known playfully to his associates as "Bill," has joined that growing group of happy young benedicts who walk on air.

On last Thursday evening Mrs. Ewing presented her proud young better 49 per cent with a 9-pound baby daughter. It is a pleasure to report that mother and child both are flourishing at Sibley Hospital and to add our congratulations to the avalanche of similar messages that have engulfed our ecstatic young friends who now can sit in on equal terms whenever Jack Daly or Eddie Sherwood starts a fanning bee about the precocities of feminine babyhood.

What is disturbing us at the moment is the prevalence of a famous English steeplechase race on the local screens this week as part of more than one of the newsreels. I hold no grudge against "the sport of kings" when run on the flat, but I detect none of the qualities of diverting entertainment in watching spirited thoroughbreds pilling up with their riders at high hurdles and apparently suffering everything from broken legs to broken necks to make an oval holiday. That is the spectacle that presents itself this week and I am of the opinion that a series of accidents that cause an audience to gasp and make vocal its collective revulsion at a scene of obvious suffering vulsion at a scene of obvious suffering can not reasonably be catalogued under the head of pleasure. Somehow, I have never been able to extract any considerable exhiliaration from a broken neck. I'm funny that sted. way.

Motion picture cameras that trail the actors through their scenes have become commonplace in the last few years, but F. W. Murnau, one of the German directors largely responsible for this fever to make movie cameras really move, has developed some new methods of tossing the lens about that are sufficiently unsual to deserve passing comment.

The big scenes of his latest production are in a hippodrome, so Murnau built a sort of revolving derrick with an arm like a steam shovel in the center of the ring. At the end of the arm is the camera cage, which can follow a galloping horse around the ring, swoop suddenly out over the spectators' seats or leap into the air with the agility of

This is just a friendly warning, so that if you see the pictorial results of any of these photographic innovations you will understand that it was the camera and not the corn that made it look like that!

We bachelors, of course, will continue to cherish our prerogative of sitting on the sidelines and counseling the youthful parents as to the manner best to rear their children. And how.

While it is principally the part of this conglomerate compendium of priceless nuggets of golden wisdom to wield its influence—if any—on the side of appreciative approbation of all that is worthy in the art of the cinema, we occasionally encounter fallacies that seem to justify pursuit of an opposite course.

SCOTT SANDERS IS FUNNY

The new Keith-Albee Orpheum policy was inaugurated at Mr. Roland Robbins' playhouse yesterday afternoon, the first performance starting at 1 p. m. and the next at 7. It so happens that the vaudeville gets under way about the same time as heretofore. The

about the same time as heretofore. The new feature, the movie, begins the bill and starts over again following the termination of the vaudevile.

Scott Sanders, a character comedian, seen here the first time, occupies the headline position on the vaudeville portion of the bill and is a welcome relief from the average run of comedians. He has an inimitable line, portraying such types as the opera singer and the old Scotch tinker. He went over well.

and the old Scotch tinker. He went over well.

William Boyd has the leading role in Pathe's "Skyscraper," directed by Howard Higgin, and supported by Alan Hale, Sue Carrol and Alberta Vaughn. While not offering Boyd the chances of some of his earlier vehicles, he makes the most of his opportunities and the picture on the whole makes for good entertainment. As the name suggests, it deals with dizzy heights, and a strong set of nerves will help one to sit through it.

The vaudeville end gets under way with Cortini, the master manipulator, keeping the audience mystified by tearing up papers and then nonchalantly restoring them whole. He is also quite restoring them whole. He is also quite expert in grabbing money out of no place in particular. Williams and Joe Mandel carry on in "Quiet, Please." Both the boys are good and they have dressed their act up in an original manner. After the acrobatic work they pull a burlesque classic dance that is a lath.

Sylvia Clark, vaudeville's little buffoon, gets through her cycle of songs nicely. She has plenty of dash and personality. Assisted by Bobbie Huhn, who conducts the orchestra and puts who conducts the orchestra and puts over the last song, Miss Clark vies for

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Phillips and Norman, Jr., return with a brand-new act—a series of sketches that go over well. They need no introduction to Don Lee and Mile. Louise have a par-ticularly colorful dancing act, weaving in dances of Spain. A smart revue, this, with Heaa Trudina and Allys Wilon assisting.

Pathe News closes the bill, a good all-round offering.

GERMAN FLIERS PLAN HOP FOR U. S. TODAY

mated here of 992 miles, which was ac omplished in about 91/2 hours, or an average of nearly 106 miles an hour. The mystery surrounding the flight as not yet been lifted, especially as it learned that Baron von Huenefeld, who is associated with the North German Lloyd Steamship Co., applied to man Lloyd Steamship Co., applied to the British Embassy at Berlin for per-mission to start for America from Bal-donnel. He recently had said, however, that "as an entirely independent pri-vate person," he had purchased the Bremen from the Junkers Works and intended to make a long "sporting flight" with Capt. Koehl.

Little Enthusiasm Shown.

Little Enthuslasm Shown.

The venture is not viewed with great enthuslasm in Germany, because aviation experts are fully convinced that an airplane with one motor is inadequate for a transocean journey.

Friends of the trio here are predicting success for them. They state that the Bremen was equipped with a set of four compasses and also carried a radio receiving set wherewith Capt. Koehl expects to pick up weather reports.

Friends of Capt. Koehl believe he will make his start from Ireland late in the afternoon in order to have daylight when he reaches the Newfoundland Banks.

Revolver in Equipment.

New York, March 26 (A.P.).—The New York Evening Post in a copyrighted story today said that a 12-cylinder engine and a revolver were the only equipment of the German Junkers monoplane which flew from Tempel-hofer Field, Germany, to Dublin, Ireland, today on the first leg of a projected flight to Mitchel Field, N. Y.

The motor was used in establishing a new world's endurance flight record

The plane is a low-decked monoplane of corrugated duraluminum with a 55-foot wing spread and a fuselage 35 feet long. On its silvery gray sides it carries its name "Bremen" and the government license No. "1,197", and on the rudder is the dagger-shaped emblem of the Junkers Airplane Co.

motor, developing a maximum of 360 horsepower, the Bremen can fly 130 miles an hour, although 90 miles an hour is said to be the most economical speed for an ocean flight. The motor now installed in the Bremen was used in the plane's sister ship Europa last summer in establishing the duration flight record of 52 and one-half hours by two German fliers.

The Bremen is a stock model mail and freight carrying machine. Only the cockpit is covered with transparent celluloid and in its freight room are three reserve fuel tanks.

The ship will carry 2.500 pounds of benzol, primed with ether, for the Dublin-to-New York hop. This is said to be sufficient fuel to keep the plane in the air 40 to 45 hours, giving a flying radius of 4,500 miles, which is about 1,000 miles more than the distance from Dublin to New York.

A year ago Miss Boll showed keen interest in a transatlantic flight and stoday made public a letter received from Capt. Walter Hinchliffe, written several months ago in which Hinchliffe. missing on an attempted flight from England to America with Miss Elsie Mackay, refused an offer of 225,000 to pilot Miss Boll. In the letter he said the had hopes of obtaining $50,000 from some one to make the flight.

All of the District officials concerned in finding a new location are said to be in favor of the Southwest proposal except Lieut. Mina Van Winkle, commanding officer of the bureau. Efforts are being made to shape the project

The property in view is occupied by a building formerly used as a Catholic academy. It is not proposed, however, to use the same building. The lot is at the southwest corner of the streets named and faces the railroad tracks. The owner has agreed to erect a building ready for occupancy within three months, suitable for Mrs. Van Winkle's purposes, but susceptible to transformation into an ap tment building after the police activities to be housed there are located in permanent quarters.

The C. L. Wold Co., of San Francisc Calif., filed suit yesterday in Circu Court against Curtis D. Wilbur, Secre Court against Curtis D. GETTING RID OF LICE.

GETTING RID OF LICE.

Mrs. J. P. J. writes: My small son has complained to me of his head teching. I find that he has lice and nits. I have tried many things, but to no avail, and I am very worried.

How can I rid his hair of them?

REPLY.

Wash his hair with kerosene oil Leave this on for ten minutes. This is enough to kill all the lice. Soak up the excess with a towel and wash out the remainder with soap and warm water. Next remove the nits by washing the hair in hot vinegar. This loosens the nits from the hairs. Remove the excess vinegar with a towel and wash out the remainder, first with water, and then with soap and water.

Comb out the loose nits and dead lice with a fine tooth comb, well greased.

So far so good You have now cotten.

So far so good. You have now gotten rid of the lice and nits in the hair. Your next job is to prevent the head from becoming repopulated. To do this you may need to extend your benevolent activities to your child's playmates. You may be compelled to include an entire school room in your campaign.

The uses of this cape are manifold. It is ideal for motoring. It can be slipped on after an energetic game of tennis or golf. At the country club, too, when the days are a bit chilly, it is a convenient informal wrap.

In the sketch we have shown it over a simple beige crepe dress. A brown felt hat accompanies it. The hat is one of the new models that fits the head closely and falls fow enough in the back to cover the hair. It is cut up over both eyebrows, and has a peak in the center of the forehead. Two bands of the felt, overlapping at the top, form the only trimming.

Mita's frock is one of Jane Regny's sport prints, so you may know that it is smart. The jabot and the bands on the sleeves and the band around the bottom of the skirt are all little touches that go with this season's frocks and those of no other. Mitai is just having a brilliant idea. Vesterday she met a famous author and she wasn't amused.

His women are always so badly dressed—in out-of-date materials and styles that nobody remembers. The only way to remedy this state of affairs, Mitzi thinks, is to write her own novel. Now, that she comes to think of it, women in novels are never as well clad as she is herself at this minute (diagonal tiers on a dress of aquamarine blue crepe).

Now that she has a typewriter and a new handmade Russian smock there's no further preparation needed for Mitzi's novel. She'll just plan out a few situations and what her heroine should wear in them. For instance, she must have her wear one of those new felt hats cut up over the eyebrow and draped with a veil. One of those new coats, too, that show a waistline. That's so smart! And an evening gown with a skirt front all of flounces that trail down one side into a sort of train. Of course, the plot matters a lot. It wouldn't do to have the scene of the novel laid in Alaska, although Banff might do for part of it. Mitzi feels she has at last found her true vocation.

New York, March 26.—All records for volume of business in the stock market and many marks for violence of fluctuations went aglimmering on the New York Stock Exchange today. With close to a million shares changing hands during each of several hours of the five-hour session, piling up a total turnover of 4.248,500 shares, some 200,000 more than the previous record, established only last Thursday, bullish interests sent active issues soaring upward for net gains ranging up to 12 points or so, and Bank of America shares booming up to new high levels for a net gain of 39½ points.

Simultaneously, the sale of a stock exchange seat at the highest price ever recorded, was announced. It went for $375,000, an increase of $25,000 over the last previous price paid for a membership. A seat was sold only last Saturday for $350,000. Today's membership sale represented the eighth new record high in price in two weeks. The difference in price between the seat sold Saturday and the seat sold today represented the biggest increase in membership price between sales in the history of the exchange.

The recent terrific activity in stocks, of course, is to account for the sensational rise in the value of exchange.

As a consequence of the country-wide publicity given the statement wide publicity given the statement credited to J. J. Raskob, chairman of the finance committee of the General Motors Corporation, that the company's stock should sell at higher prices, motors shares led the wild trading of today's market. Despite Raskob's optimism, however, the bears attacked motors vigorously at intervals after it opened 4 points up, at 194, and its price movements were somewhat erratic. It touched a new peak at 199, favertheless, and finished just ½ point under that, at a net appreciation of 8½ points, which gave the corporation's common capitalization an open market value of more than $1,100,000.000 in excess of what it was on February 29 last. The turnover in motors alone was 495,200 shares.

The immensity of transactions here dwarfed such activities as occurred in other individual stocks, but the scope of the rise on the day was not so great as in a few others, notably Du Pont de Nemours, which closed at a new top of 395 for a net gain of 11½ points on a turnover of but 4,500 shares, and Sears-Roebuck, which gained 123 net to a new peak at 110, on sales of 152,000 shares, Roebuck, which gained 123% net to a new peak at 110, on sales of 152,000 shares.

Scattered through the list were a few recessions on the day which ranged up to 5 points, but the upward sweep was quite general. Chrysler Motors, Hupp Motors, Radio, Murray Corporation, Montgomery Ward, Lambert Co., American Machine and Foundry, and American International Corporation were others outstanding with gains on the day, from 5 points to 8 or 9. Independent steels swung along with United States Steel common which, although it finished 13½ under the day's best quotation, showed a net gain of 2½ points at the close.

With New York Central and Pennsylvania in the van, showing advances of 234 and 2½ respectively, the rails also came in for marked attention, with new record prices for all time being touched by the two prominent investment issues mentioned and by a number of others. Hudson and various others of the motors boomed upward with Chrysler and Hupp, and shares of the motor accessory firms also were strong, especially Collins and Aikman and Murray.

General Electric was submitted to fleavy profit taking selling and after getting up to 148, dropped back 2 points to finish 1½ net lower. Other prominent losses on the day included Adams Express, 5 points; Calumet & Arizona, 4; International Harvester, 3½; Reynolds Tobacco B, 2½; U. S. markets, although this was not reflected in the United States. Market observers estimated also that fully half of the trading came from out-of-town and from nonprofessional traders.

Foreign exchange dealings were featured by Japanese yen, which again went to a new 1928 high, cables advancing 35 points to 47.70. Sterling was a shade lower, French held unchanged, Italian was off slightly and Dutch followed Sterling, yielding a point. Scandinavians were steady, as was German, but pesetas were under moderate pressure and declined 2 points.

Paulino Is Alternate; Tunney Must Name Foe by Today.

Foe by Today.

Already the Chicago team has taken Chalmer ("Bill") Cissell, the $123,000 shortstop, into the fold as a fixture and there, if for no other reason, we find the State Athletic Commission's consideration of the case of Champion Gene Tunney and the sturdy seven who have filed challenges for his heavyweight title. Tex Rickard today swung the club he hopes will beat his contenders in'c line. Through Machmaker Jess McMahon, the Madiski Square Garden promoter ordered Tom Heeney to agree to a match with Johnny Risko or lose whatever chance he has of meeting Tunney for the champ'onship.

Except for the possible return to form of Johnny Mostil, who needs no introduction, and the advancement of perhaps such persons on the payroll as Bud Clancy, the youthful first baseman; Bill Hunnefeld, a second baseman of no small skill, and Sergt. Connally, who for years has been threatening to become a reguar pitcher, Manager Schalk will find the going no easier than it was last seasor. of meeting Tunney for the

he has of meeting Tunney for the championship.

McMahon informed Charlie Harvey, manager of the New Zealand blacksmith, that until Heeney accepts the match tomorrow, Risko will be named as Tunney's challenger. The Cleveland baker boy tentatively has agreed to a contract that will guarantee him a title shot in the event that he wins one more bout. With Heeney out of the picture, Risko probably would be called on to "eliminate" Paulino Uzcudun, the Spanish heavyweight, who lun, the Spanish heavyweight, who has not yet been defeated his full juota in tournament engagements.

Heeney has refused to consider a bout with Risko en the grounds that he already had defeated the dougnut maker in Detroit, and through Risko's victory over Sharkey was qualified fully to fight Tunney for the title. Little doubt is felt that Heeney will fall in line with Rickard's ultimatum. The match probably will be staged here early in June.

Sudden activity on the part of the Sudden activity on the part of the Garden matchmaker, lent strength to the report that a bona fide opponent must be named for Gene Tunney tomorrow to prevent suspension of the champion by the New York State Athletic Commission. Tunney failed to choose a definite challenger when requested recently by the commission at the expiration of the six months' grace allowed a title holder.

HREVEPORT, La., March 26.—If the 1928 edition of White Sox is an improvement over that of last year, then it will be solely because of the elimination of deadwood in the infield and the acquisition of some speed in the vicinity of second base. A chronic allment with the Comiskey clan lasyear, and for that matter, during several past seasons, was the lack of versatility on either side of the keystone sack.

The White Sox were in dire need The White Sox were in dire need of pitchers in 1927 to assist Tommy Thomas and Ted Lyons. They could have found plenty of work for a lefthander with skill enough to make trouble for the opposition only occasionally.

The Sox still are in need of a hard-hitting and aggressive catcher. Manager Schalk is going to do most of the backstopping, if that is possible. Three other candidates for the job are Clyde Crouse, Moe Berg and Harry McCurdy. This is quan-tity, but no championship material.

Two such weighty opinions command a proper amount of recognition but they do not quite dove-tail with the general views. It is very refreshing and I think it would be an act of humanity of bacaball magnates if they would agree to install small running brooks through their outfields so that all old outfieders who have given the best in their dogs to the great national game could ease their bunions in the cool current."

I am not certain whether this custom of soaking the outfield for the relief of senile dogs is qui' regular and consistent with the best ideals of the national game. It might be regarded as an extraneous assistance to the victim of dog trouble. Yet I am assured that it has been done for the benefit of several elderly gentlemen who can not run very much but are remaining in the game because they can hit the ball far enough to turn a three-bagger into a neat single.

It is also a matter of baseball legend that Mr. Cobb in his earlier days often used the groundkeeper's hose on the third-base are: or let the grass grow long there so that the opposing third baseman would have the most possible difficulty fielding his bunts.

Without knowing the name of the groundkeeper at Mr. Connie Mack's baseball plant. I foresee that he will earn many assists in the box scores of the Athletics' baseball matches along toward the months of July and August. They also serve who only manipulate the fire hose. Mr. Mack doubtless will cooperate to the limit in this matter of irrigating the outfield, not only because he is staking so much on the successes.

Both Speaker and Cobb have been bounding about the palmetto flats of Florida in the most sprightly manner this spring, but I am warned not to take this conduct too seriously. I hear statements to the effect that when the hot months came last year, Mr. Speaker, then serving the Washington Club, was constantly ailing in his dogs and ran bases on his ankles.

POPE HITS FASCISM AND CHURCH PARTY

Catholics might prove detrimental rather than advantageous to them.
It is added here that Cardinal Piff, the Austrian government, the news agency and perhaps the Vatican itself, will deny the securacy of this inter-

The Pope's criticisms addressed to the diocesan board were printed in the Micial Vatican organ, Ossoveratore

The pointiff, dealing with the recent convention of the Catholic party, said the party met in Rome "without feeling the need to come and pray over the tomb of Rome's first bishop, the Prince of Apostles, and without coming to visit his unworthy successor, the common father of all the sons of the great Catholic family."

father of all the sold the party went to line stand, he said, the party went to the capitol and not the Valican, adding: "This fact is already sympotamatic and significant by itself, and such it seemed to true good Catholics throughout the world, and not only to Catholics."

Pascist Teachings Hit.

Referring to Pasciem, the Pope said that its teachings "often showed con-tradiction or ignorance of the most elemental and most nojeworthy pedatradiction or ignorance of the most elemental and most noteworthy pedagogic principles."

He reaffirmed that the church alone has the mission of Christian education and the formation of youth—this utterance on the very day thousands of youthful avanguardisti were being solamnly inducted into the Fascist party and when balilla brigades crowded the streets of Rome cheering for Mussolini.

For a long time the Pope and the Italian hierarchy have been showing signs of nervousness over the growth of the "balilla" and the "avanguardisti" organization of boys, of youths trained in military tactics and taught the Fascist doctrine that the individual exists for the state, rather than the state for the individual. Both organizations have Catholic chapitains to care for the youngsters' spiritual welfare, but there has been all along a latent fear that in the end the Fascist influence might draw the boys away from the church.

Distinction is Criticized.

Distinction is Criticized.

The Pope voiced his objections "to putting on the same footing and attributing the same right to the bespoiled Holy See and the state responsible for the spoilation, which is trying to define our differences."

"Immensely more erroneous and dangerous." he continued, "was the distinction made between religious policy and ecclesiastical policy, made important in a country like Italy."

Such a distinction, the pontiff declared, was "equivalent to distinguishing between the Catholic religion and the Catholic Church—a blasphemous, absurd distinction And," he added, "it is furthermore transparent, not to say evident, that there is opened up with this a way to return to the Masonic-Liberal distinction between Catholicism and clericalism."

That distinction, asserted the pontiff, "was the rallying point of so many hypersecutions."

That distinction, asserted the pontif.

"was the rallying point of so many hypocricles, so many injustices and real persecutions, which filled a past still not far away and which, it is to be hoped and prayed to God for, will nevermore return.

"Sad, beloved sons, are the things we come to tell you, and, even sadder, they have been approved and applauded by—Catholics."

Decrees by Government.

Decrees by Government.

Decrees issued by the Italian government on January 21 last, intended to complete the fascistization of higher education in Italy, provided for steps for the prevention of nonfascist instruction. Persons not possessing "the requisite moral and political regularity" could not be admitted to competitive examinations for posts as teachers; teachers assuming office must take an oath not to hold membership in bodies whose activity can not be reconciled with their duties. Teachers and professors may be dismissed if showing incompatibility with the government's political tendencies. Educational institutions may be abolished if their instruction does not respect the social order.

How Men Learn to Write. VII. WRITING BY SOUNDS. E have already spoken of the picture-words which were used in Egypt. The spetch of an eagle was made for "ahom," the Egyptian word for "eagle." A circle with a dot inside was made for "aun."

Egyptians made up the "aft," and how they wrote it to mean two things. (From "The Child's Story of the Human Race.")

Suppose, for a moment, that we had picture-writing instead of sound-writing. For every object, we should make a picture—the sun, the moon, autos, houses, railroad trains. We might make the pictures very simply, but still it would take a long time to write a letter. Besides, there are words which it would be hard to picture. For instance, how could we take care of the word "belief"

The Egyptians found that trouble and they learned to write by sounds at an early time. They used pictures but many of the pictures stood for sounds instead of for the things which were sketched. It was a form of "rebus" writing. If you and I wanted to write the word "belief" in that kind of writing, how would we go about it? Wouldn't the best thing be to make a picture of a bee and of a leaf? Together those pictures would read "bee-leaf" or "belief." This is an example used by the historian Breasted.

We have an alphabet of 26 letters or "aigns." The Egyptians made up picture-alphabets. They had several different ways of writing the abund "a." One way was with the picture of an "ake" (or reed).

Let us see how the Egyptians made the word "aft." For "a" they used the picture-sign for "ake." For "" they used the sign for "tot" (meaning hand). So with sketches of a reed, as snail and a hand, they apelled the word a-f-t.

"Aft" could mean several different hings in their language, so they made other signs after the three pictures to thow which meaning should be taken Four straight marks were added to give the meaning "four." When "aft" stood for jumping, picture of legs were added of piumping, picture of legs were added for jumping, picture of legs were added of piumping, picture of legs were added to give the meaning "four." When "aft" stood for jumping, picture of legs were added to give the meaning "four." When "aft" stood for jumping, picture of legs were added to give the meaning "four." # BANKS FORMING POLICY ON INVESTMENT TRUSTS

Propose Regulating Loans Asked Against Collateral Offered as Security.

MARKET PRICES FIRM

By F. W. PATTERSON.

The rapid growth of investment trusts in America and the wide distribution given these securities is forcin banks to the formulation of a policy governing loans made against such

With this in mind, the Bureau of Bosiness Research 11 New York University, has recently conducted a survey to determine the type of investment trust security preferred as collateral by the banks. Two types were ment trust security preferred as collateral by the banks. Two types were mentioned in the survey; first, the discretionary or trading type, wherein operators of the trust have a privilege of changing the underlying securities, and second, the fixed or nondiscretionary type, representing a beneficial interest in a block of specific securities deposited with a trust company, and in which no changes or substitutions are permitted.

Questionnaires were mailed to all banks and trust companies with a capitalization of $125,000 or over. The first question proffered was "Which type of investment trust share or security would you prefer as collateral for a loan?" In answer to this question 54.2 per cent preferred the fixed or nondiscretionary type, 30 per cent preferred the trading type, and 10.5 per cent indicated that they would not answer, either because of lack of knowledge of the subject or because they did not feel that the type is important in ascepting the securities as collateral Over 5 per cent said they would not accept the securities of either type.

The second question offered was "If you preferred the fixed or nondiscretionary type do you think that the collateral value would be increased, if in addition to the maintained market for the trust security, there were also the privilege of conversion to the underlying stocks or the prorata cash value thereof deposited with the trustee?" Those who preferred the nondiscretionary or fixed type of trust, 89.1 per cent, answered that they thought the collateral value of the securities would be increased by the privilege of conversion to the underlying stocks. Only 10.9 per cent of those who answered this question stated that the collateral value would not be increased.

The bankers was: "In your judgment is the bankers was: "In your judgment is the this question stated that the collateral value would not be increased. The third question placed before the bankers was: "In your judgment is the maintained market for trust shares entirely adequate without the necessity of additional liquidity attaching to the right to convert any number of shares to the prorata value of the property deposited with the trustee?" Of those answering 34.9 per cent thought the maintained market adequate without right of conversion, while 65.1 per cent thought the right of conversion necessary.

thought the right of conversion necessary.

From the answers to these questions it is concluded that most of the bankers prefer the fixed, nondiscretionary type of trust, where trading is not permitted and substitutions of collateral can not be made. The fixed type offers acceptable collateral for bank loans, as the liquidation value rests upon two supports; the resale market for the shares themselves and the general market for the underlying stocks in case of conversion. Furthermore, the bank definitely knows the exact underlying stocks and can readily ascertain their values.

City Manager Paul Morton Cities Services That Municipality Would Extend.

PROPOSAL FOR DELAY

Continuance of Case to April 15 to Await Gloth's Recovery Denied.

John S. Barbour, of Arlington and Fairfax counsel, in vain moved yesterday that the case be continued until April 15, holding Gloth's presence vital to the counties' interests. He offered in evidence the deposition of Dr. Paul S. Putzki, Gloth's physician, who stated that "any serious and sustained mental or physical exertion or excitement due to a courtroom trial and the environment of a courtroom would at this time be injurious to his health and exceedingly dangerous." Dr. Putzki deposed that Gloth "could possibly be ready by April 15."

He added that street, side-walk and sewer construction, under supervision of a trained engineering staff, would also be at their service, together with better street lighting. Morton also testified that Alexandria is "a healthy city." having had no case

Morton also testified that Alexandria is "a healthy city." having had no case of typhoid within its limits in five years. Instances of smallpox, scarlet fever and malaria have been rare, he said. Mackey tried to develop that this being the case, in spite of the fact that Hooff's Run is an "open sewer," it would not be necessary for the city to annex the entire Hooff's Run basin for sewer construction purposes, as it has contended.

F. S. McCandilsh next took over the cross-examination for Fairfax County. He obtained the admission from Morton that a proposed park system, between 300 and 400 acres in area, which the city has intimated it will develop in the annexed territory, is larger than Hyde Park in London and Central Park in New York. He further brought out that at the prevailing rate of $1,000 an interest the first would not be received. New York. Questioned as to Finances.

On the subject of finances, McCand-sh asked Morton if Alexandria was in Ralph W. He further admitted that Alexandria has made no plans for constructing streets and school facilities in the portion of Fairfax County desired for annexation. Although the city had asked for the Fairfax extension on the ground that it sought jurisdiction over Cameron Run, the stream that provides Alexandria with its water supply. Morton granuled that the water supply. Morton granted that the impounding reservoir and a portion of the stream, even after annexation, still would be without the jurisdiction of the

Prior to adjournment, Judge W. S.
Snow, of the town of Potomac, asked that he be allowed to place on the stand two witnesses from the town, at the conclusion of Alexandria's case Thursday. Continuance of the case until that day was granted when Maj. Carter Hall, of Alexandria counsel, told the court the last of the city's witnesses would be unable to appear until that time.

Two Damage Suits For $50,000 Settled

Two $50,000 damage suits, growing out of the same kind of an accident, were entered as settled and dismissed yesterday on the dockets of the Circuit Court by the plaintiffs. One of the plaintiffs was Fred Reckweg, a brakeman, who sued the Baltimore & Ohio Raliroad Co. for injuries he said he sustained February 2, 1925, by being "kicked" off the top of a freight car by the "backfire" of a hand brake.

The other plaintiff was John B.
